Since it is April 1st, I will make a joke. The commander shouted to the crowd, "Are you the RAF?". The crowd shouted back, "We are the RAF", except one Russian person, "I am not the RAF...". The commander was very angry, and yelled "What are you saying! For the glory of God"

Trumps appalling sh.t countries rant was basically, "If we import a lot of people from sh.t countries, then with time as numbers increase, their idea of how to govern will spread and all of a sudden in a point in the future our country will become a sh.t country. Democracy works that way, if enough proud people with a sh.t culture (all cultures are not equal) elect a sh.t government, the country itself will become a sh.t country. Simples.

A Priest and a bus driver was at the Pearly gates. The Priest was denied entry. The bus driver could enter. The Priest asked Saint Peter, "I am a Priest and he a bus driver, why was I denied entry and the bus driver allowed?" Saint Peter replied, "When you were preaching in the church, everyone was asleep and nobody prayed. When the bus driver drove, everyone prayed to God"

@paperchasedd, Do you have fear of God? You should, God is evil, truly evil. Did you know that the worst possible Hell is a Hell of growing pains, where pain goes towards infinity for an eternity. The issue is not Brexit, the real issue is staying out of Hell.

God! Did you know God is evil? I have figured out God's plan. Really simple, to gain all power. See, God suspected there was an overlord, and wanted someone to take the blame in the fight if He lost. God was not happy just watching the suffering, he wanted to be the cause of suffering, but he could not do that if He suspected an overlord, since He would be judged for the suffering. See, there might be an overlord of the overlord too and so on. The hero just want to live a normal life, while the guilty (no hope, either way) want Hell for all.

The problem is not partners taking each other for granted. The problem is abusive relationships,, be it psychological or physical. There are three types who want to turn back time, losers, those that feel sorry for the losers, and insane people. If a criminal husband has tried to kill you forever but was found out and is a loser now, those three categories would give him a second chance to kill. It is no game
